The diagram shows a rectangular window with a double-line border, representing a web browser. At the top, there is a horizontal bar containing the text "http://.....". Below this bar, the main content area contains the text "e-mail address or electronic message address" above a single-line input field. At the bottom of the content area, there is a rectangular button labeled "Submit". A leader line points from the number "301" to the top-right corner of the window's border. Another leader line points from the number "302" to the input field.
